

ROUND-UP FW24 FASHION SHOWS

FW24 FASHION SHOWS INTRO

Sentimental & Essential. The FW fashion shows marked a departure from the hyper-sexualized aesthetics of past seasons. Now, the runways showed that the fashion industry is embracing a more sophisticated approach to femininity and design. The majority of the big houses played it safe for FW24, presenting easily marketable collections that promise to continue the success of the recent quiet luxury trend. Talking luxury, the old money movement, influenced several collections with a new ladylike look that revives a bourgeois & vintage chic. Amidst this renaissance of elegance, designers also tapped into the fragility of our human core, with emotive moments for a somewhat sentimental awakening. Many pieces seemed to connect us with our innermost emotions and desires. On that note, the recent undressing trend was renewed with a more delicate and tender take on femininity. This softer and more graceful look made the previous sexy dominatrix story decline by -64%. But along this emotional journey, the focus of the shows remained on essentials. Corporate items are reimagined with casual tailoring and new basic knits. On that crisp note, we could also see minimalism prevail, emphasizing clean lines and understated sophistication. Overall, the Fall Winter 2024 fashion shows seemed to invite us to embrace an inner elegance while staying grounded in the essentials of modern life.

FASHION SHOW TRENDS

FW24 DESIGN TREND FIRST LADY

First Lady. The first lady trend marked a departure from this boldly sexy aesthetics of the past seasons. Instead it is embracing a return to elegance and sphistication. With 1092 looks showcasing more chic and feminine designs and 471 looks persisting in preppy styles, this trend reinforced the current old money aesthetic. Drawing inspiration from a wardrobe of the bourgeois chic, the runway was filled with iconic vintage pieces. Here, we could see luxurious car coats, playful mod-like mini dresses, tailored suit sets, elegantly draped dresses and pieces with sophisticated cowl or bow-tie necklines. Overall, the first lady looks translates a new sense of timeless glamour that is inviting us to escape into the opulence and grace of a bygone era.

FW24 DESIGN TREND MANOR BORN

Manor Born. The Manor Born trend is at the forefront of the FW shows. It is offering another fresh take on the timeless allure of the old money aesthetic, in this case giving us a more highland vibe. In 385 looks, this trend merges elements of masculinity into feminine wardrobes, resulting in a blend of designs that are filled with strength and elegance. This season, utility takes a backseat but remains subtly visible in 254 looks. Utility styles are adding a practical yet refined edge to this theme and are drawing inspiration from the military universe. Manor Born indulges in the rich palette of olive shades, that have been dominating the runways and is taking us to a highland and forest scenery. Not to forget, traditional checks and plaids are adding a grandpacore, retro touch here too. The trend's silhouettes are influenced by hunting attire and embrace a sense of aristocratic heritage and its timeless charm. They feature double-breasted coats, knitwear, cabin jackets, and riding boots.

FW24 DESIGN TREND GENTLE MOMENTS

Gentle Moments. The Gentle Moments trend presents a delicate and feminine narrative that is evoking a sense of intimacy and whimsy. It embraces the beauty of feminine softness and leans towards curated imperfections. With a continued taste for intimate dressing, this trend explores sheers and more dreamy details to create a sentimental moment on the runways. Lingerie elements were featured in 375 looks, while sheers dominated more than 872 looks. Those ingredients created an ethereal atmosphere across the shows. The trend's palette of new nudes and blush pinks harmonizes across monochrome silhouettes and emphasized the tenderness of this trend. At the same time, we see subtly romantic embellishments and bow details enhancing new boudoir moment. The overall styling dares to be a bit messy and feels undone, which is inviting us to the gentle moment of waking-up that resonates with authenticity and vulnerability.

FW24 DESIGN TREND CRAFT CAVE

Craft Cave. The Craft Cave trend showed up across the FW shows to unveil a profound longing for a spiritual renaissance. It is delving into the depths of our primal instincts and aims to connect us to earth and craft. On that note, rustic styles took center stage in 213 looks across the runways. And oversized and coconing silhouettes dominated a staggering 2397 looks to add an enveloping sense of coziness. With a hunter and gatherer vibe, this nomadic story looks at earthy colors, gritty and ethnic prints, and the tactile exploration of furs and woolen materials. Each garment becomes a vessel for spirituality here. We see looks that are adorned with talisman necklaces, leather belts and jewels to evoke ancient rituals and traditions. This Craft Cave story, is inviting us to embark on a journey of self-discovery and to connect to the natural world and the depths of our heritage.

FW24 DESIGN TREND CORPORATE MINIMAL

Corporate Minimal. The Corporate Minimal trend extends the appetite for essential styles while embracing the quiet luxury trend. With this story we redefine business dressing with a subtle sense of avant garde deconstructions. Minimal design was featured in 414 looks and tailoring reigned supreme in more than 1817 styles. For this trend, sleek, almost clinical designs elevate classic corporate dressing. Sharp collars and shoulders add a touch of architectural precision, while interesting layering elevates classical pieces. At the same time, more daring deconstructions explore asymmetric knits and knot-around pieces for an intriguing interplay of form and function. The fusion of tailoring, fine knits and nylon fabrics introduces a sense of modernity here. Further, monochrome palettes with pops of color-blocking see this narrative adding vibrancy and depth to rather basic ensembles.
